Kids and staff head back to the books

On Tuesday approximately 1,100 students and 200 staff members began the 1999-2000 school year. Among activities taking place this week were CPR lessons for thirty-three bus drivers and kitchen staff. The day-long training took place at Telstar High School, and was conducted by Arlene Greenleaf of Bethel Rescue and several district volunteers. Here, food service workers Betty Smith and Jennie Fillmore practice the technique for resuscitating infants.

Sought for armed robbery

Local law enforcement officers were searching Wednesday for a man who allegedly robbed the Big Apple store in West Paris. No details have been released regarding what he may have taken from the store. The man entered the store at approximately 2 a.m. and displayed a "machete-type" knife, according to police. He allegedly forced the clerk into a back room, cut the phone line and shut the door. The man is described as being approximately 17 or 18 years old, about five-foot seven inches tall and weighing 160 pounds. He was wearing baggy jeans and a black and white ski mask with an emblem, and was driving a dark Chevrolet Beretta-type car.

Group begins to explore options for Locke Mills dam

Fear loss of shorefront and tax revenues for two towns

By MICHAEL DANIELS

A group of local residents and camp owners has begun looking into the possibility of asking the town of Greenwood to take possession of the dam at Gilbert Manufacturing.

The dam, in Locke Mills, holds back the water in South, North and Round ponds. It also controls the flow of water in the Alder River.

The dam has suffered periodic structural problems that resulted in lower water levels in the ponds, and its condition has long been a matter of concern for some residents, especially owners of shorefront homes and camps.

That concern was heightened in September 1998, when Gilbert Manufacturing filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection. The dam is on company property and owner Duane Gilbert had been maintaining it.

In June of this year, another woods-products company, Saunders Bros., received permission from a federal bankruptcy judge to purchase the Gilbert Mill -- but Saunders officials said they had no interest in owning the dam.

With the matter still in the hands of the court, the status -- including the ownership and future -- of the dam has come into question.

Supporters hope to expand TMS after-school offerings

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

In November of 1998, President Clinton gave a speech that we remember, not because of the speech, but because of an answer he gave to a question after following the speech: "I did not have relations."

Clinton's speech, about funding for after-school programs for adolescents, claimed that adolescents get into trouble between 3 and 8 p.m., or after school. Today, with parents out of the home working, that is the time teens are left to their own devices.

Many teens are involved with productive after-school activities, including sports. And if that teen happens to go to Telstar Middle School, there might be some other activities available, without federal funding.

Sally Hannon, vice principal at TMS, has been working with staff members, parents, and members of the community at large to offer a range of after-school activities for students. "We try to provide opportunities that aren't available to students," Hannon said. "The kids feel safe here, and they like the chance to stay after and socialize with their friends."

Last year, activities included open library time, cooking classes, an audiovisual club, and classes, drama and a chess club. The activities were taught or supervised by volunteers, both TMS staff members and members from the community.

Hannon has been able to find some funds for materials, but there is not enough money available to pay instructors. Frequently, the students most in need of after-school activities are the least able to pay for them, so the activities are being offered free or for a nominal fee.

TMS students were interviewed to find out the kinds of activities they would be interested in. The list was extensive, including sewing, cooking, woodworking, automotive, chess, drama and music, academics, fishing and hunting, swimming, football, rocketry, stilt walking, and art.

Bringing people from the greater community into the TMS to share skills with interested students accomplishes more than just providing supervised time for students after school, said Hannon. It builds bonds between the community and the school. Those bonds work both ways -- helping students care about people outside their direct environment as well and helping people outside the school care about the students.

The after-school programs take place on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. Late busses are provided to allow students from across the district to participate.

This year, there is hope to expand on the programs. Hannon would like to introduce an automotive program, expand on the art, cooking, and sewing programs, and offer more outdoor activities. The computer lab will be open, with

Vintage airplanes on view here this weekend

By ALISON ALOISIO

A World War II-vintage Albatross and a 1956 DC-3 are among dozens of old airplanes expected to touch down at Col. Dyke Field this weekend.

Radial-engine planes from the 1940s, '50s and '60s will take part in the second annual Bethel Air Radial Round-Up.

"We're looking at 50-plus planes -- that's a huge number for (an airport of) a town this size," said Hector Ocasio, line service manager for Bethel Air Service.

By the time all the planes land for the Sept. 4-5 event, said Ocasio,

Volunteers restore vault at Andover cemetery

By ALISON ALOISIO

The wooden door frames were rotten, the outside concrete walls were cracked and the inside walls were moldy. Some townspeople suggested it might be time to do away with the old vault at Andover's Woodlawn Cemetery.

In recent years, after all, it had only been used to store grave-digging tools. And even that was really unnecessary, since the town now contracts out for the service.

But Freeman Farrington and other members of the Andover chapter of the Knights of Pythias thought the vault was worth saving, even though they were not sure of its age.

So they put an ad in the paper asking for donations to help repair the old vault. They received about $225 -- not a huge sum, but enough to cover their planned repairs.

Farrington, who is retired, did most of the work. He replaced the door frames and painted the doors green, sealed the concrete with a fiberglass bonding material and cleaned the inside with bleach. The concrete was painted gray.

Farrington also cut wooden letters to spell "Woodlawn Cemetery," and he and his wife, Norma, placed them over the doors. The result, as described by selectman Wendy Green, was "beautiful." (See photo, page 4.)

Farrington said he has heard a lot of positive comments about the project, from both residents and out-of-towners.

And, he said, there have been no further suggestions about tearing down the vault.

THS freshman works hard in defense of her goals

By ALISON ALOISIO

Jenna Poor, 14, doesn't like to watch ice hockey on TV.

"It's boring," she says.

Not a surprising attitude from a girl her age. What is surprising, however, is that Jenna loves to play the game.

"I can't go into an arena and not skate," she said.

Jenna, who lives in Andover, is, as far as she knows, the only girl in the Bethel area playing on an organized ice hockey team.

She's been at it for six years. She was inspired to take up the sport by her cousin, Craig Janney, who recently retired from the National Hockey League. He started his career with the Boston Bruins, and played most recently for the Tampa Bay Lightning.

She's never met Janney, but just knowing she had hockey in her blood awakened her own desire to try it.

Jenna joined a boys' team in Berlin, N.H. when she was eight. She tried playing offense first, as a right winger, but quickly found it wasn't to her taste. "I'm not that good at stick-handling," she said.

But she was a fast skater, and was able to chase down most other players. So she switched to right defenseman -- and found her niche. She spent the next three years checking opposing players.

As Jenna and the boys got older, however, she began to notice that the checking "got a little rough," she said.

Her teammates started protecting her. But Jenna thought it wasn't fair for them to feel they had to watch out for her. Her mom, Belinda, was also having some misgivings about playing against boys.

Belinda suggested she switch over to a recently-formed girls' hockey team in Auburn. "I didn't want to play with the girls," said Jenna, "but my mom convinced me to try it."

Jenna did, and she said, "I loved it." She found herself in good company. Many of the other girls had also come from boys' teams.

For the past two years, Belinda and Jenna have made the hour-and-a-quarter drive to Auburn three or four times a week for games and practices. The season runs from October to March.

It's a demanding schedule for both. Belinda juggles the traveling with her job as a dental hygienist, and Jenna juggles it with school. But, said Jenna, now a freshman at Telstar High School, "I get better grades when I'm busy." It forces her to organize herself, she said.

This past year, her efforts on the rink paid off. Jenna's team won the Maine State Girls' Hockey Tournament at the "B" level. She was the captain.

Her team also finished first in the league for the overall season, posting a 20-0-1 record. They played teams from central and southern Maine.

HEAR ALL ABOUT IT

To the Editor:

Thank you for granting Public Access Channel IV permission to read from The Bethel Citizen on a weekly basis. I had asked you to do this in response to a request from Channel IV followers who are visually affected to the extent that they are no longer able to read newsprint.

The first reading was from the Aug. 19 issue. Last week we tried to benefit from shortcomings of the first try. Now, this is our plan: On Thursday mornings, at approximately 10:15 we will go "live" from the studio. A replay will be scheduled for 4 p.m. on Fridays. Another replay will occur sometime during the week. This schedule should last until fall sports might interfere.

I have attempted to read the front-page articles quite fully. Then I go to the back page, with sometimes shortening of obituaries. Letters to the editor, portions of Back Pages and Briefly are also in the regular plan. As time permits -- 45 minutes seems the very longest session -- one of the local columns in the Channel IV viewing area will be included.

Being able to do this is very important, and I hope I can present what has been written faithfully. Also, perhaps there will be others of better voice who will be volunteering to assist in this project. (Channel IV telephone, 824-2780.) We welcome any input.

THANKS A MILLION

To the Editor:

Make that around $45 million, which is roughly the amount American Tissue Corporation paid for the purchase of Crown Vantage Corporation's Berlin-Gorham Mills Group, now known as Pulp & Paper of America, LLC. Infinitely more valuable than the purchase price, however, is the long-term stability and renewed sense of hope and optimism that American Tissue Corporation's presence brings to our community and the region.

Considering that not too long ago our mills were perilously on the verge of closing, to say that ATC's interest and emergence on the scene was a godsend would be an understatement. The fact that they are here at all is due to the six-year multimillion dollar tax dispute between the city of Berlin and Crown Vantage Corporation.

That agreement, which, among other things, paved the way for ATC's acquisition, was achieved by an 11-member negotiating team comprised of participants from city government, Crown Vantage management and a state-appointed mediator including: Mayor Richard Huot; councilmen, David Morin and Paul Grenier; city manager, Robert Theberge; comptroller, Aline Boucher; Berlin board of assessors, Leo Vallee; CV vice president, Jim Wagner; CV director of human services, Bill Lockard; CV financial manager/fixed assets, Vincent Caruso; CV senior vice president, Chris McLain; and "mediator," George Bald, commissioner of the Department of Resources and Economic Development.

During a welcome reception and special awards ceremony on Thursday, Aug. 12, at the White Mountain Chalet, chamber member businesses along with state and local officials gave a warm New Hampshire welcome to our new mill owners and paid tribute to the negotiating team players who were instrumental in bringing this about.

It was our distinct honor to recognize these 11 individuals for their extraordinary efforts by presenting them with the chamber's first-of-its-kind Outstanding Community Service Award. It was also a pleasure to announce the winners of the nationally competed 1999 Sam Walton Business Leader Award (Jim Wagner, Bill Lockard, Vincent Caruso and Chris McLain) and the 1999 American Hometown Leadership Award (Mayor Richard Huot and councilmen, David Morin and Paul Grenier) which garnered a $500 and $5,000 economic development grant from the Wal-Mart Foundation for the chamber and the city of Berlin respectively.

BALANCE THE KEY AT SADDLEBACK

To the Editor:

Balance. Legislators, leaders, policy-makers, and ultimately, the public that we represent, are constantly seeking balance in the choices that they make regarding important issues like economics, the environment and the rights of the individual.

In Franklin County these days, people are grappling with questions of balance in the debate over Saddleback Mountain: Should the mountain be preserved with "wilderness views" for Appalachian Trail hikers? Or should the mountain's private owners have the right to realize the highest and best use of their property?

Let's look at both sides of the scales. From the National Park Service's perspective, the 3.2 miles of trail crossing at Saddleback represent irreplaceable hiking terrain, with breathtaking views that should be as pristine as possible. In short, they don't want hikers to see any evidence of a ski resort, despite the fact that they are passing through one. They would like to see at least 923 acres donated, sold or taken by eminent domain.

From Saddleback's perspective, they are a vastly underdeveloped ski area with the potential to be one of New England's premier destination resorts. As ski industry professionals, they believe that the proposals put forth by the Park Service would devastate the mountain's ability to be competitive with Maine's other world-class ski areas. They also assert, quite convincingly, that the Park Service's claim to any more than 330 acres under eminent domain is illegal.

Unfortunately, that's not all that hangs in the balance. Franklin County lies within the area of Maine with the highest unemployment rate in the state. This region is desperate for jobs, and all economic forecasts indicate that a modernization of Saddleback would bring many jobs, and anywhere between $23 and $38 million in annual economic benefits to the region.

But there's more. Saddleback has offered to donate 660 acres of mountaintop to the Park Service for permanent protection of the trail in a configuration that would minimize view disturbances for hikers without destroying the skiing experience.

Less than 10 percent of the donation would be needed by Saddleback to place certain skiing infrastructure within what would be a corridor ranging from 1,000 feet wide to more than a mile wide around the trail. Any ski lift terminals would be below the tree line, and well below the AT footpath, and none would be within 200 feet of the trail on either side.

Only two natural ski trails would cross the trail along the 3.2 miles; no lifts or any permanent skiing-related equipment would cross the trail.

Would hikers see evidence of skiing at Saddleback? Without question they would see some -- as they see Rangeley's airport, ski trails and lift terminals, and other indications of civilization today. However, our federal government leaders have said explicitly that this is acceptable under certain circumstances.

When Congress passed the National Trails Systems Act, they specifically mandated that where the Appalachian Trail passes through private property, it should not negatively impact the highest and best use of that land, nor should land owners be prevented from crossing the trail to access and use their entire property. They also stated clearly that the trail was to be open to mixed recreational uses, and that ski areas were ideal examples of compatible uses (which Appalachian Trail officials agreed with in their testimony). There was no ambiguity on these points, and anyone who takes the time to read the Congressional testimony for the Trails Acts will see that they were made again and again by legislators as the law was forged.

Congress understood balance. They realized that the rights of recreational hikers should be protected, but not to the detriment of hard-working private landowners, whose economic activity feeds families and provides livelihood -- not to mention provides equally-valued recreation for skiers, in the case of Saddleback.

The Appalachian Trail passes through nearly 200 miles of wilderness in Maine, and few states can match the quality of the resources we've set aside for this national treasure. But the 3.2 miles at privately-owned Saddleback require a few steps of compromise in the spirit that Congress demanded, both to protect individual rights, and to make way for urgently-needed economic benefits.

The Park Service will site alternative development possibilities, or the unfeasibility of what Saddleback wants to build, or the damage that their proposal will do to the environment, but it's all noise designed to confuse and cloud the issue.

What they really want is it all.

Saddleback's owners are professional ski industry folks; they know what can or cannot fly at Saddleback, and they're the ones who will pay dearly if they're wrong. As for the environment, Saddleback cannot move one shovel of dirt without passing muster with some of the strictest environmental regulations in the nation, administered by the Land Use Regulation Commission (LURC). Development cannot move forward without their rigorous review.

The Park Service released an Environmental Assessment this summer outlining a series of proposals for the future of Saddleback. This proposal includes several alternatives (including Saddleback's offer) for public review and comment. There is an enormous problem, however. All of the Park Services alternatives include buying or taking 893 acres or more of Saddleback land.

First of all, Saddleback owners have made it clear that they will neither sell nor donate land that will destroy the mountain's competitive potential (very good news for Franklin County residents). Secondly, the legislative history of the 1978 amendment to the Trails Act very clearly states that the Park Service can take only 125 acres per mile of trail -- or about 330 acres of land -- by eminent domain. (They have claimed that they are allowed to take 125 acres of land for every mile of the entire 1,000-plus mile Appalachian Trail, which is an absurd twist of logic that would theoretically allow them to take more than 420 square miles, or well over a third of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, if they so desired.)

To put these proposals out to the public with full knowledge that they are neither legal nor in any way possible is an insulting attempt to manipulate the situation and the people of Maine, who have done far more than their share in protecting the environment and the Appalachian Trail.

This is not an attempt at striking a balance, it is an attempt to grab the whole pile. How can anyone look a jobless father or mother in the eye and tell them that their family's next meal is less important than providing a few more acres of "wilderness" views? Particularly when the landowner in question is bending over backward to give far beyond what is required by law to protect the Trail?

This is not an attempt at striking a balance, it is an attempt to grab the whole pile. How can anyone look a jobless father or mother in the eye and tell them that their family's meal is less important than providing a few more acres of "wilderness" views? Particularly when the landowner in question is bending over backward to give far beyond what is required by law to protect the trail?

This is a shameful episode of federal harassment, and one that will most likely be continued in the Park Service's quest to conquer the Maine Woods and extend the Appalachian Trail into Canada. Senators Snowe and Collins have stepped out and supported the people of Franklin County and the Saddleback offer, as have my colleagues in the Legislature, Sen. John Benoit, the Franklin County commissioners, the Rangeley Board of Selectmen, the Sandy River Plantation assessors, the Rangeley Region Economic Growth Organization, the Rangeley Lakes Region Chamber of Commerce, the Franklin County Development office, and the Androscoggin Valley Council of Government, among others.

Now the people must speak out. Respond to the Environmental Assessment (EA), which includes five alternatives for settling the Saddleback issue, but only one fair and legal one. It is Alternative #3, which is essentially Saddleback's 660-acre offer. It represents the only fair and legal basis to negotiate a settlement of this issue, and I urge all to support it.

Copies of the EA can be obtained from the Park Service by writing or calling to: National Park Service, Appalachian National Scenic Trail, Harpers Ferry Center, Harpers Ferry, WV 25425; (304) 535-6278. You can also reach them on the Internet, at www.nps.gov/aptr/ea, and you can e-mail your personal feelings on the future of Saddleback Mountain and the EA to: appa_aptr_office@nps.gov.

This is a critical issue for the near- and long-term relationship between Maine and the NPS. Please get involved.

NEW (AND TEMPORARY) VIEW—Bethel recently completed a $2.3 million upgrade of its wastewater treatment plant, and now residents and visitors alike have a much better view of the final product, thanks to the clearing of a lot owned by former selectman Bob Chadbourne. In addition to having been cleared, the lot is also being graded and will eventually be filled to the point where it is above floodplain, Chadbourne said. There are no current plans for further development of the lot, which is about an acre in size, he said. "We're simply making it into a better lot." Acknowledging that the buildings and machinery of the treatment plant are not everyone's idea of the most attractive view for the bottom of Main Street, Chadbourne said his plans for the lot do include planting a row of cedars along the back side. New tower to meet demand

LOCKE MILLS—The radio communications tower at the top of Mt. Abram will be replaced by a new, wider tower, in order to meet increasing demand for communications services, according to Denny Wilson, owner of Wilson Tower Company. The height of the tower—approximately 120 feet—will not be increased, Wilson said. The current tower is solar powered, but the equipment on the new tower will be electrically powered and backed up by the old system and a generator. The equipment on the tower will provide radio and cellular signal capability, as well as PCS, or “personal communications system,” capability, said Wilson. Rapidly increasing demand for such services led to the decision to increase the capacity of the tower, he said.

‘Jet-ski’ ban floated in Norway

NORWAY—Following a recent survey that showed strong support for banning ‘jet skis’ on most of the town’s lakes, selectmen were expected to discuss tonight (Thursday) the possibility of putting a jet-ski ban before town voters. The survey was conducted by the Lakes Association of Norway, which has not taken a position on a ban but has asked selectmen to discuss the matter. If the selectmen were to decide to put the matter to voters, a special Town Meeting would be required, due to an Oct. 30 deadline in the legislation authorizing such actions. Earlier this year, Greenwood and Woodstock banned “jet skis,” or “personal watercraft,” from lakes and ponds in those towns.

Grange ‘Ceiling Repair Fund’ benefits

BRYANT POND—Two fundraisers are planned to benefit the ceiling repair fund of the Franklin Grange. A variety show Sept. 18 will begin at 7 p.m. and feature pianist Phillip House, as well as a harpist, clogging, and yodeling. Weekly ball room dancing lessons will also be offered by instructor Nancy Willard beginning Sept. 16, from 7:30 to 9 p.m., at the Greenwood Town Hall. The classes will run through Oct. 21. The charge is $25 per person (call 665-2788 for more information).

Two cougar sightings

NEW HAMPSHIRE, VERMONT—Cougar sightings have recently been reported in Lancaster, N.H. and Lunenburg, Vt. The Lancaster sighting took place on Aug. 1, when three people saw “a big cat” 300 yards from the house they were in. Closer examination with a high-powered telescope revealed a large, cougar-like animal with a two-to three-foot long tail. The Lunenburg sighting took place Aug. 19 when a man returning to his pick-up truck after feeding the fish in a fish pond spotted an animal 200 feet away. After he had watched the animal through binoculars for nearly an hour, it suddenly started running toward the truck, turning off when it was less than 20 feet away. The animal was described as black, about two feet tall and four feet long, with a tail that was 25 to 30 inches long and about three inches in diameter. No tracks were found at either location.

ATV safety course for kids

NEWRY—An ATV safety course will be offered here in September for 10 to 16 year olds. It will be coordinated by the Newry Recreation Committee and instructed by Rocky Freda of Sun Valley Sports. There will be no charge for the eight-hour course, and it will be open to all 10 to 16 year olds in the area. Call Nancy at 824-2115 to sign up. Dates, time and location to be announced.

Fish license fee falls for fall

AUGUSTA—Maine residents who wish to fish this fall can purchase licenses for a special price of $8 plus an agent’s fee. The fall licenses are valid from Sept. 1 until the end of the year, and can be used for fishing on up to 6,000 lakes and ponds, and 32,000 miles of rivers and streams. The fall licenses are available now at close to 1,000 locations throughout the state, including town offices and retail stores such as L.L. Bean, the Kittery Trading Post and Rite-Aids. For more information, call the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife at (207) 287-8000.

Maine mineral exhibit to be set up

WEST PARIS—Recognizing the fact that minerals have played an important part of both commercial industries and recreational usage in the area, West Paris Historical Society has decided to establish an exhibit of Maine minerals in their museum on Main Street. In order to make this possible, members are asking the public to make donations of suitable Maine minerals for this exhibit. A lighted display case, given to the society by Perham’s, will be used to show the collection. It is requested that the specimens be identified so the type and origin of each piece will be known, as well as the donor’s name. For further information, please call Sayward Lamb, 665-2829; Harlan Abbott, 674-2385; or Milton Inman, 527-2139.

SAT scores up

AUGUSTA—Maine high school seniors this year improved their SAT scores and placed 10th among the 50 states on combined math and verbal scores. The students averaged a score of 507 out of 800 on the verbal portion of the test, a three-point increase, and averaged 503 in math, a two-point improvement. The number of seniors taking the test also grew by 1 percent, to 68 percent. The national average is 43 percent. Maine ranked 10th in the combined scores among states with 40 percent participation or better. Washington was first with 1051, followed by Oregon (1050), New Hampshire (1038), Alaska (1030) and Massachusetts (1022). Among Maine students, the boys’ average verbal score was 510 and girls’ 504. Average math scores were 521 for males and 488 for females.

Falcons head for the city

BANGOR—Peregrine falcons are making a strong recovery in urban areas and Maine officials wonder if the lure of the big city isn’t one of the reasons the population isn’t growing in Maine. The number of peregrines in Maine has been stable for the past decade while populations have been growing elsewhere in the East, said Charlie Todd, a wildlife biologist with the state endangered species program. Some of Maine’s peregrines have ended up in Boston and even New York City, which has twice as many nesting pairs as Maine. “Even some of the young peregrines produced by wild nesting pairs have defected to the city,” Todd said. The known sightings of the falcon in Maine have fluctuated between five and eight since 1989. The bird remains on the state’s list of endangered species. Peregrines catch their prey in flight, swooping down from high cliffs to stun smaller birds. But skyscrapers provide a handy substitute.

Med school applications off

CHICAGO—The number of applicants to U.S. medical schools declined for the second straight year last year, and will be down even further this fall, according to the American Medical Association. One admissions dean said the robust economy is encouraging many potential doctors to try other fields, and the increasing dominance of managed care and the prospect of heavy debt may discourage some potential applicants. A typical medical student owes $100,000 by graduation.

CORRECTION

Unvarnished ignition: According to Bonnie Needelman, owner of the burned-out RV pictured on page one of the Aug. 19 Citizen, the varnish referred to in the caption describing the start of the fire had dried by the time the candle fell. The candle flame ignited upholstery, she said.

Airplanes

By the time all the planes land for the Sept. 4-5 event, said Ocasio, the field will look “like a little museum.” The aircraft will be arriving all day Saturday, with the best viewing beginning in the afternoon. A cookout, open to the public, is also planned for Saturday afternoon.

Some of the planes have had more than a million dollars in renovations put into them, Ocasio said. Other types of aircraft participating include Russian Yak and Sukoy planes (aerobatic craft), a Navy T-28 fighter and ultralights. With no control tower, how will all those planes land safely at the Bethel airport?

“They’ll be talking on the radio, and we’ll have an ‘air boss’ on the field on the radio telling them where to land and go,” said Ocasio.

Between 40 and 50 planes took part in the first roundup last year. With more expected this time around, Bethel should see a jump in weekend tourist business, he said. Pilots from as far away as California and Florida are planning to fly in, according to Ocasio.

In addition to the pilots and their families, others are expected to drive to Bethel to see the exhibition.

From the

Bethel Conservation Commission

The annual Household Hazardous Waste Collection is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 25 -- mark it on your calendar and watch for notices from the town office. For Bethel residents, the hours will be 9 to 11 a.m. at the Recycling Center. Residents of other towns should check with their town office. This is your opportunity to get rid of no-longer-usable materials that are toxic, flammable, corrosive, or reactive, in an environmentally responsible manner.

No-longer-usable paints should be separated into two categories, latex (water based) and oil based. Latex paints are not considered hazardous waste. Latex paint containers can be left open (away from children and pets) to let the contents slowly harden to a solid, which can be included with regular household trash. Oil-based paints, varnishes, stains, etc., should be brought to the hazardous waste collection.

Used motor oil and antifreeze are accepted at the hazardous waste collection, but you can save the town (and therefore yourself) money by asking your local garage or service station whether they take these materials. If they don’t, they can refer you to someone who does.

A final suggestion: Think of relatives or friends who, because of age or health, could use your help in ridding their home of hazardous materials.

Dam

Last week two dozen local residents and camp owners met at the Greenwood Town Office to discuss the matter.

The ownership of the dam was the focus of much of the discussion: Who owns it now? And who might in the future?

There appeared to be general agreement that the town would be the best owner, and the most logical, since a big piece of its tax base consists of valuable shorefront property. (The neighboring town of Woodstock also receives taxes for shorefront property on North Pond.)

But Greenwood voters would still have to be persuaded to take on responsibility for the dam, and there is no guarantee they could be sold on the idea.

Marie Bartlett, a former Greenwood selectman, noted that Duane Gilbert has informally offered to sell the dam to the town for one dollar, but the selectmen have not pursued the idea.

The possibility of having the local lakes association manage the dam was raised, but Bartlett noted that if the group owned the dam, it would also assume financial liability for it. And in the event of a serious breach of the dam that liability could be open ended and overwhelming.

But if Greenwood were to own the dam, she said, its municipal liability would be limited by law to $300,000, an amount which is covered by the town's insurance.

Norm Putnam of Woodstock, a former code enforcement officer for Greenwood, noted that funds are available from the Federal Emergency Management Agency for upgrading such dams.

But the application process is complex, he said: "You've got to do your homework ahead of time."

The group agreed to meet again over the Columbus Day weekend, in the hope that by then more will have been learned about the ownership status of the dam.

Individual members of the group also agreed to look into other questions, such as the experience other towns might have in owning such dams, and the value—in lost property tax dollars—if the current shorefront on the lakes were to be lost.

Jenna

The Augusta team, which finished second, was a particular rival, said Jenna. Although girls' hockey rules do not allow checking, the referees loosened up a bit for the Auburn-Augusta games, she said. She admits to spending a little time in the penalty box. "I was called on some roughing," she said.

She would like to see some limited checking allowed in the girls' game. "It would hype it up a little," she said. She says that despite the fact that she had her jaw dislocated by an Augusta defenseman.

This summer, Jenna met—and befriended—the defenseman at a Bowdoin College girls' hockey camp. "We were enemies on the ice—but now we're really good friends," said Jenna.

Still, she said, there will be no letup when they meet again this winter, when both will be moving up to new teams.

Olympic dreams

Jenna would like to see more girls from the Bethel area take an interest in hockey. But, she said, it's not for everyone.

When the United States women's ice hockey team won the gold medal in the last Olympics, it brought a rush of young girls to tryouts in the Auburn program.

Many of the players, however, gave up after a short time in the sport, she said. They wanted the glory they had seen on TV—with-out the dedication that goes with it, she said. Jenna practices because, she said, she loves to play.

The Andover teen does have a few long-term goals. One is to play hockey in college, preferably at Colorado State University.

Another is to play in the Olympics. It's an ambitious goal, but, she said, "I don't want to limit myself right now."

Bethel

by Virginia Keniston
The West Parish Congregational Church honored Mary Valentine at a coffee hour following church service Sunday morning.

Mary has retired as organist, a position she has held since 1973. Her organ music was enjoyed Sundays at church services, funerals and memorial services. She also introduced and taught the English Bell Choirs. A beautiful cake was made by Lois Kilroy. The organ search committee also assisted with the special occasion.

Jill O'Donnell donated one of her kidneys to sister Kara a week ago Tuesday at the Maine Medical Center in Portland. She is recuperating now at the home of her dad, Mike O'Donnell. Kara, too, will arrive home in the next week.

Linda Brown Foster and friend of Pittsfield, Mass., were guests of her mother, Beatrice Brown, over the weekend. Arlene Brown of Salem, N.H., was also a weekend visitor from Thursday through Monday.

Cwen and Debbie Brown and Aaron, Beatrice Brown, Arlene Brown, Linda Foster and friend, Blake and Rachel MacKay, and Susan MacKay Parker attended the Richardson Reunion in Fryeburg/Brownfield on Sunday. Abbie Brown, mother/grandmother, was a Richardson.

Dorothy Wooster, formerly of the Bailey Road, now of Montello Heights, 550 College Street, Lewiston, ME 04240, is recovering from a fall. She would be happy to hear from her many friends in Bethel with "get well" wishes.

Michele Varuolo has moved into the former Remington house on Kilborn Street. She has been in the Bethel area for a few years, serving on the Comprehensive Plan Committee and now on the 2003 Committee. She is employed by American Ski Association as assistant to Les Otten at Sunday River Ski Resort and is president of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce.

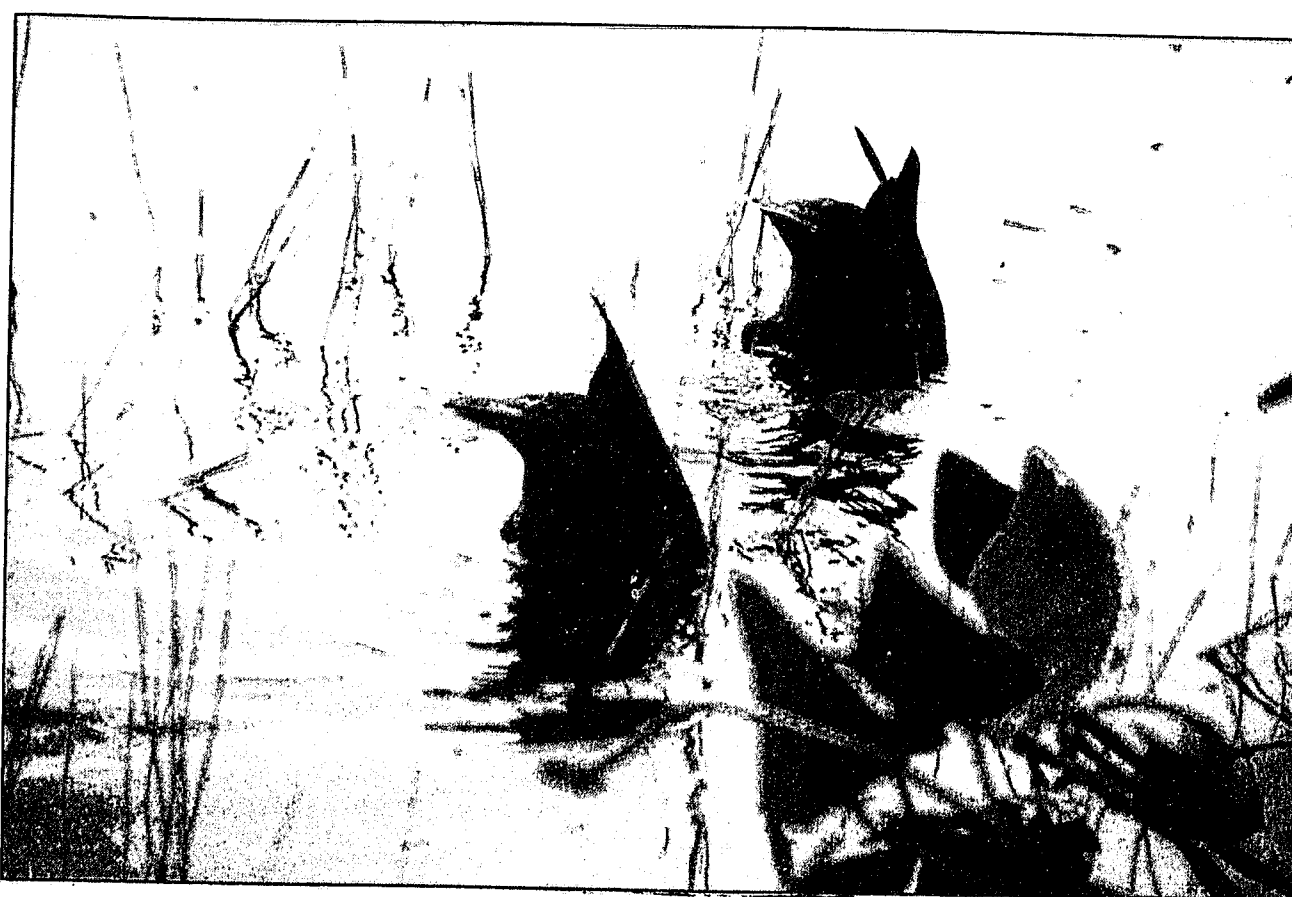

The Bethel House

by Ruth Cummings

Jack Brooks has been here delivering the firemen's calendars to those that take them. Arthur and I started buying them 25 years ago and I continue to do so now. The firemen do so much and ask for so little that I believe everyone that could should buy a calendar. Jack said they were getting new ones every year and I hope that continues. At first Arthur and I bought three; one for ourselves, one for his folks and one for mine. If you have not already bought one, maybe you would like to see if some fireman has an extra one or at least order one next April to be delivered in August. The calendar starts in September.

Pastor Rick was out one afternoon and we played cribbage. He skunked me once and won another game, but I skunked him once, too. Now he is ahead one game.

I agree with Ginny Keniston that the sidewalks are in great need of repair. My greatest problem is down in front of Ruthie's when I try to go to the bank. After nearly going on my face four times one morning when I had my walker, I came back via the street. It's not really safe to do that. I called the town office and talked with a man that said he would see what could be done about it, and it is possible something was done, but I have not been down that way since but once and nothing had been done then. I fear someone will be hurt badly in a fall.

Our manager, Liz Perry, was here Thursday afternoon and she plans to come every Thursday afternoon. She is trying to find someone close by that could do some maintenance work so that we would not have to wait for a week for the man out of Portland to get here to put in a light bulb or some other thing that should be done at once.

KC Denton plans to come up every Friday now and he was here last Friday.

Irene Russell and Margaret Quinlan went for a ride through Rangeley recently.

The other day I read a sign in a plumber's window that read, "You do not have to sleep with a drip tonight."

"May you live as long as you wish, and not want as long as you live."

Folks from Unicorn Flower Shop were here recently trimming the shrubbery and trees and they did a great job. Now we can see the street better from the verandas and things look a lot better, too. Unicorn does a great job and the folks are so nice to have around.

Paul and Marie Bartlett and Marie's mother visited Helena Bartlett at the Bethel House recently.

Bible" at the Nazarene Church on Oct. 3.

Clara Whitman had a doctor's appointment in Norway recently and she invited Rebecca Ricker to go with her so she could visit with Mildred Newell while she was at the doctor's office.

Irene Russell went on the Casco Bay Cruise with other senior citizens on Wednesday.

Ronnie Hanscom and I each received .6 inches of rain in our rain gauges during the day and night of Aug. 21. As of Aug. 21 I have received five inches of rain for August. I believe Ronnie is a bit ahead of me on the total. He lives in Walkers Mills.

Cecelia and Lillian Kjellman spent the weekend recently with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Webster, and attended the Bethel Alliance Church on Sunday.

Paul Bartlett and his wife's parents visited Helena Bartlett on Monday afternoon.

Vada Glover spent the day with me on Tuesday. We played cribbage as usual and this year we have played 350 games and she is two ahead. Since we have started playing we have played 1955 games and she is three ahead. Today she had seven 19 cribs and I had four and I had one 19 hand. For those that may not play cribbage, a 19 means nothing. All games were close and so much fun.

We went to Ketter's for eye drops, to Porter's for a pressure check and also to Wal-Mart. We ate at Shaner's. We also sat out on the veranda some.

Upton

by Eleanor LeCompte
The Friends of the Upton Church are pleased to report that work has begun on the church. The roofs over the doorways are being reconstructed with new lumber and shingles. The steeple repair will begin as soon as the crane is available. We expect this to happen within the next week.

The steeple fund received a generous donation from Lillian Fuller Rose of Portsmouth, N.H. Her very interesting letter relates the story of how her grand-parents, Lysander and Phoebe Brooks Fuller, settled in a farm on East "B" Hill in the late 1870s. They raised eight children; at least six of the children lived in Upton at one time. Lillian is the last of Lysander and Phoebe's grandchildren. I hope she doesn't mind my telling her age. She is 82 years young. Lillian has many fond memories of the town and tells us how the church was an important part of her early years. She reads the Bethel Citizen with pleasure and loves to hear about Upton. Her donation is in memory of her grand-parents and her parents, John and Maryann Stewart Fuller. Thank you, Lillian, for your donation.

Lately, I have been spinning yarns about our "Resident Moose." Well, this fellow deserves mentioning. It seems everyone has a story to tell about him. He is a young moose with nubby, short antlers. The human voice does not seem to bother him when people have occasion to talk to him. He is very curious. He takes a slightly different route to the lake each day. The latest trail is up at Merna and Bob Monroe's house. George Hamel came down the road the other night and saw the moose looking through Merna and Bob's screen porch. Although he favors the grass or whatever on the lake shore, he has been seen grazing and chewing twigs. Everyone is enjoying his visits and hopes to see more of him.

School opened on Tuesday, Aug. 31. We wish all our students a happy year and hope they will all be honor students. John Aaron will be the bus driver again this year.

Debbie Sweetser has been hired by SAD44 as a technician level three. Debbie took a fall last week, injuring her shoulder, but she is very optimistic about getting down to business with the pupils.

The Route 26 Scenic Byway Committee meeting was held on Aug. 26. There will be a Public Meeting on Sept. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Newry Town Office. We hope all the abutters and interested citizens will attend.

Although summer is almost over, Sue Nelson and Ginny Williamson enjoy a daily swim in the river. I've been invited to join them but I respectfully decline on the grounds that terminal "goose bumps" may result.

This week's candidate for "Bird of the Week" is tyrannus tyrannus, better known as the Eastern King Bird. Any given day one can be spotted at the mouth of the Dead Cambridge River. This defensive little bird is part courageous protector and part tyrant, thus his Latin name. He will attack crows, hawks, or any bird that enters his territory with such vigor that the intruder leaves in haste. There was a time when farmers used to shoot them because they believed that the birds consumed honeybees. It is said that Audubon deplored this practice and fought it. Today's farmer is his friend, since he routs hawks and crows from the chicken yard. The Eastern King Bird has a black back, white under parts and a white band on the tip of his tail. His head is black, but there is a concealed red crown, which is rarely seen. I like to stand on the bridge and watch him flit from bush to bush. On occasion he will plunge to the water to bathe or catch a bug as the swallows do. The Eastern King Bird is Upton's "Bird of the Week."

Visitors this week in town are Herb Thomas, at the Monroe home, and Nicole and Mike Nelson at Sue and Larry Nelson's.

Joe Bernier was sworn in as Code Enforcement Officer.

The Planning Board met on Saturday, Aug. 28. Three permits were issued.

Most days last week were nice, so each afternoon I went out to my lawn swing to watch the wildlife. I saw many different things. The geese have gone but not the ducks. A couple of deer came to the back shore of the pond to eat weeds or have a drink of water.

The most interesting to me has been a small animal that comes to the swing and at first sat beside me, looked at me and decided to eat sunflower seeds from my hand. Now he sits in my lap and tells me, "I am your chipmunk." He fills his pouches so full that I wonder if he can lift his head. Away he goes to his hole in the ground. In moments he is back until the seeds are gone, at least a cup full. When there are no more he talks to me, but I tell him, "No more." He stays around until I go, just hoping.

Rena Curtis and family have met to greet her son, Kenneth, who is seldom able to get time enough to get home. I am happy to think of seeing him again.

The Holts had a "cookout" at Ann's home on Sunday instead of dinner at the farm. The view and weather were perfect.

Our new neighbors in the Dorothy Betts' house were here for the weekend.

I went to Portland with Sally Fort one day this last week.

As we were approaching Brooklyn, N.Y., I looked back at my daughter, Sarah, sitting on the edge of her seat excitedly reading an orientation schedule aloud. It seemed like yesterday she was leaving eighth grade and entering Gould Academy in Bethel. "How on earth did a shy girl from the Flat Road get to New York City?" I thought. The answer flooded into my mind in the form of a question, "Did I want my children to live their dreams to the fullest?" I decided without hesitation, yes. At her age, I had not dared risk leaving the comfort of my home, Flat Road, West Bethel, but somehow I had gifted the possibility to my children.

The exits were not plainly marked -- freeway traffic slowed to a crawl, the air conditioner seemed stuffy and, therefore, I opted to open the window to allow an exchange. The smell of exhaust,

It's more than just a

Clean water is essential for our tourism and fishing

But Maine's water quality is in danger. Our lakes, rivers tires and the city overwhelmed me. Fred's window had been down, but I had not noticed the burning aroma until I opened the passenger side. I mentioned a burnt-rubber smell as we crept along in the 100-degree smog, but Fred, who knows everything about city traffic, assured me that it was just "fires on the road" and "traffic smell."

Stalled in traffic surrounded by unfamiliar people, cars, and watching huge tractor trailer trucks vying for position behind and beside us, I tried covering up my anxiety about being in the city. I patted the dashboard of the '93 Oldsmobile which had gotten us safely thus far and exclaimed, "This has been the best car -- we have been very lucky." As words left my lips, the smells became too much and I protested again as I heard Fred say, "I hate the city." We were both getting fed up with the situation and hoped that traffic would get a move on.

Barely sane and not liking the traffic, I told myself we were only 20 minutes from Pratt Institute, where the biggest challenge of the day was ahead of us. The burning smell was overtaking my senses again, and I looked up to see blue-black smoke rising from under the hood of my faithful wagon, the one I had just been praising. I screamed at Fred that the smell and smoke was coming from us. He turned from farmer-in-the-city mode to "Trafficman." I had seen his city driving before and knew he preferred his oxen to any motorized vehicle, those woods road to paved street and now he would get to prove his ability to overcome this urban nightmare. Nancy Willard's family had a family reunion at the Pratt's home, formerly Jay and Melva Willard's.

Nancy was disheartened this past week that her pet dog of 15 years, Scampy, passed away.

Sarah Caret, daughter of Pat and Gary Caret, just completed a summer course at Emerson College and now will return to Wheaton College. It will be Sarah's senior year. Sarah teaches skiing for children at Sunday River.

Carolyn Lowe just returned home from a visit to Williamsburg, Va. She was doing some sightseeing with her daughter, Bethany, who is stationed in the Navy there. Wow, it was hot there.

Cindy Bobbe is looking forward to working at the Woodstock Elementary School this fall. She and her family are happy they moved here. They love it here.

The Sunfish Association ended their season racing on North Pond a few Sundays ago. The trophy winners were Gregg Cushman, Keith Turley and Maggie Mills.

Keith, Holly, Andrew and Robert Turley have been visiting Holly's parents, Bob and Marcia O'Neil, for a few weeks. They also had a visit from their son, Rob.

Matt, Nancy and Annie Cushman now have a pet puppy called Riley. Riley is a German short-haired pointer and is very cute.

Dot and Nancy Cushman and Kristen (Cushman) Inman attended a bridal shower for Sandy Riggott. Sandy was married this August in Bethel.

We now have new sidewalks. Now, maybe more people will be out walking to the library. Helen says one of the best books to read is "Tuesdays with Marrie."

On Saturday, the firemen and families were invited to the Maine Conservation Camp for a cookout. The food was delicious. Nineteen people attended. Much thanks.

On Saturday afternoon, the Baptist Sunday School had an indoor picnic, because of the weather, and carnival at the Awana Room. A good time was had by all attending. Games, face painting and eats were enjoyed by all.

On Sunday afternoon, the Charlotte and David McDonald reunion was held at the Mexico recreation field. About 60 to 70 people attended with the oldest being Esther McDonald. Several Hoyts attended from town.

Bob and Gwenn Hoyt of Augusta and Arthur Wardwell of Albany, were Saturday supper guests of Beatrice Farnum, Ken and Alice Hoyt. Jane Wardwell and Danjean Reynolds attended the picnic at the Sunday School with Marybeth Hoover.

Each Thursday at the Baptist Church is Ladies' Bible Study at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m., and at 7 p.m. Men's Discipleship Class. On Sept. 5, Tim Knickerbocker, missionary to France with the Baptist World Mission, will be at both services.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens will meet on Thursday, Sept. 2, at the Grange Hall for a meeting. Lunch will be served by the Tri-Town Auxiliary and a game party will follow. Each one is to bring a game prize.

The town Republican Committee will meet at the Town Conference Room on Friday, Sept. 10, at 7 p.m. Mrs. Kay Hoover of New York is visiting her son and family, Steve, Beth and Marybeth Hoover.

For those who want to know what T.W.G. stood for on the back of the Veterans' monument, it is Thomas Walter Gordon.

Steve and Joyce Horne's daughter, Merideth Howe, will be re-enlisting in the Navy at the end of August. She has decided she loves playing the flute and clarinet and wants to do it full time in the Navy Band.

John and Deanne Rothwell of Black Brook Road are expecting their second child this fall. They now have a son.

Mrs. Gordon (Beverly) Brown's mother, Winola Billings, celebrated her 100th birthday on Aug. 22 at Ledgeview Memorial Home, where she resides. Several family members and friends went to her party to help her celebrate.

Mrs. Annella Burnham, her sister and a cousin went to the Burnham camp in Lamoine for a few days. This is near Ellsworth. Rayann Burnham and a friend from Durham, N.C., have been visiting her mother, Annella.

The historical society museum is a treasure house of the area. The historical society has accomplished much in 20 years. Help make the future as bright. History Day was successful this year despite inclement weather and attendance was up. President Kathleen Bean organized the event and the curator, Larry Billings, greeted guests. Some orchids decorated the museum. Thanks to those who had booths in the parking lot, including Pat Gott, JoAnn Crockett, Belmont House, the Bethel Chamber of Commerce and Mary Billings. Ruth Cox organized the flea market. Kathleen Bean, Barbara Hathaway and Annella Burnham took care of the food table. Olive Risko gave tours. Paul Billings and Larry and Elsie Bonney set things up and helped out in general.

The Willing Workers will be holding a sale at the Union Church, Andrews Corner, South

Woodstock, on Sept. 4 and 5. There will be old dishes and other items from the church, a food sale and other items of interest. Rosalie Poland will also be holding a sale at the same time at the church; she has some antiques and miscellaneous items. Patty Thurlow is also planning to have a couple of tables there at the same time.

Chester Brown has firewood for sale; split and fitted for $60 a cord, u-haul. He can be reached at 674-2748, if anyone is interested.

Gary and Jeannine Wing recently returned from a trip to Wichita, Kan., where they spent a week visiting their son, Troy. During their stay, they traveled to Oklahoma City and visited the Murrah Building bombing memorial and to Hutchinson, Kan., to visit the Cosmopolis and Space Museum where the Apollo capsule is on display.

Claribel Poland received calls from Arizona, Florida and England, and she had many local calls to wish her a happy 87th birthday.

Larry Poland is a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital. We hope he will be home and recovering when you read this. Good luck, Larry. Rosalie Poland has been taking care of his children quite a bit while he is there. There are four boys and they are Rosalie's grandsons.

Hazel Dillingham spent an afternoon with me one day last week. She had some more pictures and letters from one of the servicemen who was in the Vietnam conflict. The pictures and letters were mostly about our brother, Leon Poland Jr., who died in Vietnam 32 years ago. She gave me one of the pictures, which I'm going to frame. I'm always glad to visit with Hazel. I hope to do it again real soon.

The Clements had a family reunion recently in Swanville. The whole family attended. Some of those attending were David Clements and wife Audrey Lazenby, their children Caroline, Peggy and Julia from Birmingham, Ala.; Bruce and Cindy Clements, Sarah and Kyle from Weare, N.H.; and Eric Clements and Yvette Laco of Concord, N.H. Marta Clements' children all stayed four days with her. Marta's mother, Charlotte Thompson of Goffstown, N.H., is visiting with her for awhile.

The Whitman Memorial Library in Woodstock will be holding a walk-a-thon on Sept. 26. This is the second annual one to be held and they are in hopes to have a good turnout. You can make a donation at the town office and/or pick up a sheet to enter the walk-a-thon, "Walk for Literacy." The funds will help to purchase TVs and learning tapes for children.

Dallas Poland has been working with his grandfather, Leon Poland, this summer. Leon said he does a super job.

Larry Billings, curator of the Woodstock Historical Society, reports that the museum has received a campaign poster and some works of art. Basil Sequin recently gave some books and paper items to the museum. The society is a small group, but everyone does their part; for this we are grateful.

Fundy at low tide and were able to walk on the ocean floor to view the nature's Flowerpot Rocks. We then went via the dramatic Confederation Bridge to Prince Edward Island, spending the night at a campground. We took the ferry from Wood Island to Nova Scotia and then to Cape Breton. In New Germany, Nova Scotia, we visited with Vern's relatives, Jake and Connie Penney and family. Our journey home was via the ferry from Digby, Nova Scotia, to St. John, New Brunswick, the airline Route 9 and home. We were pleased to have our grandson with us, as he will be leaving for the U.S. Army for basic training in Fort Jackson, S.C., the first of September.

The Senior Citizens will go to the Wild Animal Farm in Mt. Vernon on Sept. 7. They will be meeting at the Baptist Church parking lot at 9 a.m. We will be eating lunch on the way.

Sunday River Valley

by Rockie Graham
Last weekend, the weatherman said rain, rain, rain, and we did get rain on Saturday but Sunday was nice, and today it is sunny and beautiful. We needed the rain. We could even have used, rain, rain, but it was not to be. The hurricane may still reach us in the form of rain, but we will have to wait and see. This weekend, they promised rain, again, and we got precious little. The days were sunny and warm, the evenings were delightfully cool.

I have been spending my days running to job interviews. It wouldn't be so bad, except that interviewers are fairly rude and do not let the interviewee (that's me) know the results for weeks. I find that rude and, of course, annoying. Why not just let everyone know where he or she stands? Then there are the places that one never hears from. These places may reply in three months or a year and an applicant can't even remember applying. That is very rude and demonstrates a lack of caring, and perhaps, a kind of elitism. In any case, it is not somewhere I'd really like to work; so it is on to the next place. Not getting a job in Portland or Brunswick actually saves me money because I don't have to travel that far to work. I also don't have to buy a new car or move. That is the silver-lining.

Right now, I am looking for someone to clean my house. Actually, I just need someone to vacuum and sweep. Vacuuming makes my asthma worse, and not doing it makes it worse, also. So I have been calling folks to see if they are interested. Meanwhile, I am sweeping and hoping for the best. I never thought that I would ever have someone else clean my house. Not that I am the neatest person around, but I always took care of it, myself. But the last couple of years, that doesn't seem possible. Perhaps if I got it cleaned a few times, that would help my asthma enough, especially with an air purifier, (which Sears keeps telling me will be here next week), that I would be able to clean my own house, again.

Or maybe I'll just get a roommate who likes to clean.

I was at Linda's, last week to buy eggs, and one of her ducks just had ducklings. They are so cunning, all white and brownish tan and some are black and white. They are fluffy and follow their mother everywhere with their little legs going oh so fast that it looks like one of those cartoons where the legs just whirl. The small calf is growing, too. The calves in the backyard are getting bigger and braver and don't run as much when Tasha gets near the fence. She and they don't seem to realize that the fence and the electric wire separate them. She gets to feel fierce, although if they actually came through the fence, she would run. The other day, confronted with the tiniest mouse I've ever seen, she backed off so much she fell down the stairs. Then when I came near, the mouse jumped down about eight steps and took off, never to be seen, again. I guess Tasha will never be a mouser, at least not in the house. She gets moles, outside, and an occasional mouse, but inside, they could walk off with her supper dish and she would just watch. Sharing can be carried too far.

I have been eating my corn -- it's been great. Not as good looking as found in the stores and farm stands, but it sure tastes great. Weeding like a mad woman, I found several very large pumpkins, not award-winning huge, but larger than I've ever grown. Usually I just grow pie pumpkins, so these are a real treat. Look for them on display. If I get more than one, I may give them away for carving. One is quite orange, already. The other is yellow. There may be others lurking in the weeds. I'm working at it. Have a good week, and if anyone wants zucchini --

Mason Township

by Richard Grover

I had to have a couple cavities filled last week for the first time in six or seven years. I had almost forgotten what a pleasurable experience that can be. Dr. Ross asked me, "Do you like to have novocaine when you're having a tooth filled?" I'm thinking, "Sure, I love having that needle stuck deep into my gums." But I answered,

"That depends on how deep you're drilling." He said, "Well, I'll be going pretty deep, so you'd better take the injection." "Okay, if you insist." Then he stuck a cotton swab, impregnated with some kind of anesthetic, between my gum and the inside of my cheek, numbing the area before sticking the needle in. I must admit that the needle didn't hurt, but it was an uncomfortable feeling, the way he stuck it in, first in one direction and then another. It just conjured up images of how close the needle must have been to some really sensitive nerves.

After the anesthetic had taken effect, Dr. Ross had me open up, then stuck both hands plus the drill and a "water squirter" into my mouth and proceeded to ask questions. "What do you think of that Mark McGuire?" "Don't you like this cool, sunny weather after all the heat and humidity?" "Of course, the answers were always the same, "Umph," plus a nod of the head, which, of course, messed up his drilling angle.

Now, it all comes back. Dentists, like doctors, go to very expensive schools just to learn how to make you as uncomfortable as possible. I think that is because they want you to be so glad to get out of there that you will pay anything to get away. As this was happening, I was reminded that waiters and waitresses, too, have a way of making you uncomfortable. They serve you some dish, usually very good and quite messy, and then wait until you have a mouth full, with maybe a little dribble of gravy or juice creeping down from the corner of your mouth, and then ask, "Is everything okay?" Or, "Can I get you something to drink with that?" There is no way you can respond without feeling either silly, uneasy, ashamed, or otherwise uncomfortable. About all you can do is nod or shake your head, grin sheepishly and try to keep from exposing the partially chewed material still in your mouth. "Ummm." they must attend some of the same courses as doctors and dentists.

Andover

by Joan Stinson Carney

This is the time of year when significant changes take place in people's lives, families are torn asunder, either you are filled with great joy, or mind-numbing grief; in other words school has started again. Andover residents who are leaving or have already left for their first year of college include Casey Brown of East Andover, who is going to Colby; Philip Bailey of Andover, who is going to Lancaster Bible college; Julie Burgi of East Andover is already at the University of Arizona; Christie Richardson is at Colby-Sawyer; John McLean is going to New Hampshire Vo Tech; Adam Williamson is on his way to University of Maine at Orono; Robert Cuff is at Southern Maine Technical College; Scott Waite is going to University of Vermont; and Angela Percival is going to University of Maine at Mexico. They all leave behind very poor parents and sad friends. Upperclassmen going away again include Liza Fyrborg, a senior at University of Maine at Farmington; Karen Thurston, a sophomore at University of Virginia; Justin Hutchins, a senior at Emerson College; Megan Meisner, a junior at Leslie College; Fred and Daniel Emerson, sophomores at Harvard (that's in Cambridge); Ken Jodrey, a sophomore at Wesleyan; Ian Richardson, at Villanova; and Darcy Morse, a sophomore at University of Maine at Orono.

Now I'm really going to date myself -- it was the fall of 1959, Eisenhower was president, Elvis was King, and I was a woman of 17 going all the way to Farmington to become a teacher, scared to death but excited at the same time. Tuition was $100 per year, room and board about $500. At our first meeting with the dean of women, we were told that we were now women, that we would have to be in our dorms at 8 p.m. every evening except Friday at 10 p.m. and Saturday at 11 p.m. We had to sign out every time we left the building, tell where we were going and who with, and sign in when we got back again. Our lights had to be out at 10 p.m. during the week. There were no males (even your father) allowed above the first floor. It wasn't lady-like to chew gum in public, smoke in public, or wear tight light-colored sweaters. But we were now women. In spite of all that, I'll never regret the time I spent at F.S.T.C. (Farmington State Teachers College, as it was called then). There was only one University of Maine and they thought they were really special, a little above the rest of us. An education can be a wonderful thing and all that I learned there hasn't been wasted -- just ask my sons. Thirty years later, my son Tom became a freshman at Merrimack College in Massachusetts. I couldn't believe moving day -- men and women -- very young men and women -- were living on the same floor of dorms, loud music everywhere, and it wasn't Elvis, believe me. Tuition wasn't even close to $100 and there wasn't a sign-out sheet in sight. I was born too early I guess.

Betty Moore has been very "entertaining" lately. More visitors include her daughters, Sharon and Shirley, grandchildren, Tamie, Sarah and Lindsey, and friend Ralph. All these fine people are from Massachusetts. During their visit they enjoyed trips to the Balsams, Flat Rocks and Evans Notch. Thank you Barbara Meisner from Florida, for your wonderful note.

You can't begin to know how much that means to me. Library time: Tonight, Sept. 2, at 6:30 at the Andover Public Library there will be a Poetry Night. Come and read your favorite poem, one you have written or one that has brought meaning into your life -- whatever. Last week's tie-dyeing project was a big success. Everyone had a good time and nobody was dyed blue.

The Calvary Congregational Church will return to winter hours beginning Sunday, Sept. 12, with the startup of Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. and the morning worship service at 10:45 a.m. The CCC family would like to extend an invitation to the community to attend the special Christian Education Dedication service during the morning worship hour, with a fellowship dinner following on Sept. 12. The annual Sunday School Rally Day will be held the second week of classes, on Sept. 19, with a Pancake Breakfast at 8:30 a.m. and classes following. Sunday evening services will be held most weeks at 7 p.m. For more information regarding the fall programs, please contact Pastor Waite at 392-1121.

Barbara Bailey, new superintendent of the Andover Calvary Church has the following teachers to help her through the year: preschool and kindergarten, Adriane Gallant; first and second grades, Joan Waite; third and fourth grades, Sharon Waite; fifth and sixth grades, Gloria Miller; seventh and eighth grades, Mary Bailey; teens, Pastor Waite; and adults, Clarence Bailey and Scott Farrington. Answer time: Why did the turtle cross the road? To get to the Shell Station of course. Question time again: Why did the elephant cross the road? Answer next week.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson

The McAllister/McAllister Club was represented at the 21st Maine Highland Games at Thomas Point, Brunswick, recently by the following: Dick and Marilyn Jones, O'Neil and Estelle Heath, Guy McAllister Jr. and Rodney McAllister. Family cookbooks, note paper with family logo, T-shirts and genealogy books were on sale at the family tent.

Earl McAllister and son, Dean, of Williston, Fla., have just returned home after spending a few weeks in Maine visiting relatives and friends.

Eleanor Nelson has accepted part-time employment at Evergreen Valley.

Barry Andrews has been working for Albert E. Nelson Sr. a few days recently. Don't forget the public church supper on Sept. 2. This will be the last baked bean supper for the season. There will be homemade baked beans, casseroles, chop suey, salads, brown bread, rolls, desserts and beverages being served from 5 to 6:30 p.m. Hope you can make it. Okay people, one more Thrift and Bake Sale will be at the East Stoneham Church on Saturday, Sept. 4. There will be some good buys, including $1 grocery bags full of clothing in the main room. Come on in and see what you can find. There are some nice dishes, crafts, jewelry, clothing and shoes, etc., and on the bake table there is usually diabetic foods as well as brownies, breads, pies and cookies, etc., at a good low price. This is all to benefit the church and any donations are always welcome. We will be closing for the winter soon, as we can't store the clothes over the winter months.

On Wednesday night, Aug. 25, members of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Hannah F. Richardson Tent 19 met at the K of P Hall in Stoneham for their regular meeting. During this meeting, Michelle Barker Lagieux was initiated into the order. There were 11 daughters and one son of Union Veterans in attendance. Gail Butterfield, former national D.U.V. president, spoke about her travels to other states and to Civil War Memorials, etc. She also spoke about our own national D.U.V. convention, which was held in Portland at the Double Tree Hotel. Everything went very well and all had a good word for it. Lesley Dean was installed as our Maine department president. Our Stoneham tent has been well represented. At our tent meeting, Loretta An-draws filled in as color bearer number two, Marilyn Jones as color bearer number three and Elaine Lagieux as color bearer number four. Refreshments were served after the meeting by members present. The next meeting will be at the K of P Hall on Wednesday, Sept. 22, at 7 p.m. This is a patriotic order and if anyone is interested in joining our group, they can call me at 928-3096. They have to be a direct descendant of someone who served in the Civil War.

On Aug. 25, I visited Wilma Taylor at the Norway Nursing Home and when we were getting ready to go inside, Pastor Lloyd Waterhouse and friends came out and saw us and spoke to us and then they sang a couple of favorite hymns to us right there. Their voices blended together and it was beautiful. I hope we can hear them again. That was real nice of them and we both appreciated it. I also visited Al Yemma.

On Aug. 20, Albert and Eleanor Nelson went to Nelson's camp at Wilson's Mills. Albert Nelson Jr. and Troy Nelson went, too. It was a good weekend.

The Church Thrift and Bake Sale did very well that weekend. Thanks, Ellie, for tending the bake table. Thanks also to all of those who donate their time, articles and money.

Our sympathy and prayers go out to the family of Bruce Smith, who passed away recently.

From the Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

Historian Neil Rolde, author of a number of books on Maine history including a dual biography of James Phinney Baxter and his son Percival, will be the featured speaker at the 34th annual meeting of the Bethel Historical Society to be held on Thursday, Sept. 2. The meeting will be held at the society's Robinson House, beginning with a 6:30 p.m. potluck supper followed by a brief business meeting and a presentation on the senior Baxter's career as a Maine historian starting at 7:30 p.m. This lecture will continue the 1999 series on the lives and work of seven Maine historians.

During the business meeting, the report of the Nominating Committee will be heard. Also the annual volunteer service award presentation will be made. The meeting is open to anyone interested. Those attending the supper are requested to bring a hot dish, salad or dessert to share.

The second display case, acquired with funds donated in memory of Rodney K. Howe, arrived this week. It is expected to be used in connection with an exhibition planned at the Robinson House to open next year. Much appreciation is expressed to all those who made this gift possible.

The Bethel Historical Society Museum Shop, located in the historic 1821 Robinson House on Broad Street, continues to add more merchandise reflecting the history of the area. There are quite a few books and other gift items including antique toy reproductions, genealogical charts, baskets, folk art and other handwork. The shop will continue to be open through foliage season in September and October, Tuesday through Sunday, 1-4 p.m. On Saturday, it will open earlier beginning at 10 a.m. Volunteers are always needed to run the shop. Anyone with some time to give should call the society office at 824-2908 or Priscella Walker, store manager at 824-4284.

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

The Business After Hours for September mentioned in last week's article has been moved back a week to Monday, Sept. 20. It will be a progressive event, starting at Perham's of West Paris from 4 to 5 p.m., then at Mollycodd Market-place Antique Center (across from Perham's on Route 26), from 5 to 6 p.m., then finishing with refreshments at The River Restaurant at Snow Falls on Route 26 from 6 to 8 p.m. Another chamber member from West-Paris, Maine Balsam Fir Products, will have a display at The River Restaurant, as well. This event is also designed to be a mixer between the Bethel Area and the Oxford Hills Chambers of Commerce. Come join the fun, visit these great chamber members and meet some of our fellow business people from the South.

Welcome to our newest members: Pinnacle Woodworking of West Paris, Rob Bergman, owner. Rob specializes in fine carpentry and cabinetry. Our second new member is Wordsmith, Val Elmore, owner. Wordsmith is based in Greenwood and is a professional editing company with 25 years experience.

All members are invited to the Community Networking Breakfast, scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 8 from 7:30-9 a.m., to be held at the Briar Lea Restaurant. A continental breakfast is available for $3 per person. All those interested are asked to RSVP to the chamber office, 824-2282 by Tuesday, Sept. 7, at 4 p.m.

We are actively seeking volunteers to help us with the second annual Bethel Harvest Fest. This event is being held on the Bethel Common on Sept. 18 and 19 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days. We are looking for folks to donate one or two hours of their time to help us sell tickets, beverages, ice cream and snowman items. Please call the office if you have any time that weekend. Many thanks to our event sponsors: Mead, Sysco Food Service of Northern New England, Fresh Samantha Juices, Coca-Cola, Gifford's Ice Cream, and Sunday River Ski Resort.

The chamber is updating our annual Guidebook and we are seeking donations of great photography. Any picture donated will be returned and if used, will be credited appropriately. We need these photos within a week. Thanks.

From the Waterford Historical Society

On Sept. 9, at 7 p.m., William "Whizzer" Wheeler, III, of Waterford, will present a program at the Old Town House by the town beach in Waterford Flat. Wheeler has been building a personal collection of historical photographs of famous people for many years. His unique interest has given him a different vantage point of viewing history. He begins with a single document and researches its history. "Historical photographs, letters and documents are a virtual time machine. They open doors into the times, events, lives of their authors and force us to learn more about the persons or events that they represent," he said. He is known to travel to special auctions and come home to Waterford with new treasures to research.

However formal the document may be, the signature itself is unique and personal, like a fingerprint, and gives Wheeler a "sense of awe," a feeling of being in the "very presence of the leaders of our nation and our community."

The documents he will be reviewing for the Waterford Historical Society will be a mixture of Waterford-related and broader materials. They open up unusual avenues of information such as:

--What was the unique connection of John Hancock and Henry Clay with the town of Waterford?

--Why did Louisa May Alcott's mother come to Waterford and what was her influence on her daughter?

--Why did Ralph Waldo Emerson buy a farm in Waterford?

--When did Governor Samuel Adams start urging Mainers to separate from Massachusetts?

--What were the contents of one of Charles Farrar Brown's last letters to his mother and what did Artemus Ward think about critics?

Following the presentation, the documents will be available for review by members and welcome guests. Everyone is invited to enjoy coffee and a potluck dessert and have an opportunity to ask Mr. Wheeler about his unique collection.

We keep those who need to leave home close to home

A bad fall that has you temporarily laid up...a slow recovery from surgery...an aging parent who can no longer remain at home alone. There are times when you or a loved one may need care you just can't receive at home or in a hospital. For those times, there's a professional, caring alternative that's close to home: Market Square Health Care Center.

For those recovering from illness or injuries, we provide a unique opportunity to receive coordinated care from hospitalization through short term rehabilitation. Our health-care team of skilled nurses, physical therapists, occupational therapists and speech therapists work with each patient to create a comprehensive plan of care designed to help achieve strength and independence as quickly as possible.

For those in need of long-term care—from 'round-the-clock nursing to the specialized demands of Alzheimer's disease—we offer a safe and welcoming environment that emphasizes quality of life and quality of care.

Call us at 743-7086 to find out just how close we are.
